I am of Māori descent and a proud representation of my culture and heritage. Born in 84 and brought up through the evolution of the technological age, I have an immense appreciation for the history of our rohe and use the lessons of the past to shape our future. My proudest accomplishment is being a husband and a father to 3 amazing children who keep me grounded and serve as a constant reminder of what's most important.

I have governance, director, management, communications, and multimedia experience. I am positive, great under pressure, and pride myself on my ability to positively elevate any environment I am a part of. I have strong core values which help me to navigate through the past, present, and future.
